

New York Stewart ANGB

Facility and Location

Stewart Air National Guard Base is located in Newburgh approximately 80 miles south of Albany. The base encompasses 275 acres and is home to the 105th Airlift Wing. The 105th Airlift Wing's mission is to provide peacetime and wartime inter-theater airlift operations using the C-5A Galaxy cargo aircraft. The C-5 Aircrew Training System provides aircrew ground training, total contractor training with instructors, courseware, aircrew training devices, computer based training, and instructor based training. The base became Stewart Air Force Base in 1948 and was deactivated in 1970.
